THE ALPHABET'S MEETING.

The alphabet met and said that "they Were not arranged in a proper way." A had stood at the head too long; It was not right; it was utterly wrong, "For you all know and can plainly see That place belongs to me," said G, "You take the head, indeed!" said J; "That place is meant for my dear K." "Tut, tut, tut! Well, well, well! I'll stand there myself then," said L. "Excuse us, please, we think that we Have a word to say," said B, C, D.

"Suppose you have," said B, C, D.

"Suppose you have," said F as he

TALK OF MARRIAGE.

For the Girl, Apparently, A man may remark on his intention to marry at some indefinite future time, may make it possible or advisable, should a girl be hold enough, or, rather, natural and simple enough, to say the same thing what would be the resuit? Why, every one knows that she would be promptly sneered out of counte-

And why? Is it immodest for a won an to express a determination to enter into a state which we are being contin uaily reminded is a natural and honor able state, while it is modest and prop er for a man to do so? Such a distinct heen made.

If a man wants to marry, he can marry. If the first woman he asks refuses him, he has only to ask a second or per haps a third or fourth. It would he safe to guarantee that within a month any man of fairly respectable life and position and appearance cared to make the experiment co . marry in his own class, could marry probably a woman much superlor to himself.

But what about the girl who intends to marry "some day?" Is she not in a very different position from the man Here is a girl of good character-mucl hetter than the man's, probably-aver age intelligence, average good looks. Theoretically she is free to marry whom she will, but is she? If she receives one distinct offer of marriage she has had more than her share, ac eording to the probable average.

The fact that by an unwritten law woman must not take, and, indeed, does not want to take, the initiative has very little to do with the extremely limited choice which modern conditions impose upon English women.-Nineteenth Cen

Swallowed Two Pounds of Stone. Stones do not form part of the recoguized diet of the cormorant, but one of these hirds in the National Zoolog ical park in Washington had a craving which could be satisfied only by eating two pounds of stones. The keep er's attention was attracted to the bird because after having once sat down t couldn't get up. He was picked up, and then the stones were heard rattling uside of him. An official connected with the park decided that something cormorant open and relieved him of his burden. One of the stones, of Irregular shape, was 31/2 inches long. The inelsion was sewed up, and for five days the bird got along all right, the wou healing finely, but at the end of that time the cormorant grew restive and pulled out the stitches with his hooked hill. As a consequence of opening up the wound he died.

Quarrymen and stone dressers will prohably be gradually crowded out of their occupation by the use of artificial stone. In the manufacture of this stone the sand is heated and the cemeut add ed to the amount of 12 per cent of the mixture. The steel molds are filled with the dry material and moved into an immense cylinder, which is closed and bolted. Boiling water is then turned in under pressure sufficient to force it all through the sand in the moids. The cement slacks, but the steel molds do not permit any expan sion to occur, and the stone is formed and dried under an immense pressure The result is a very hard stone, which can be supplied in shapes desired and much cheaper than the uatural stone.

Odd as it may appear to dwellers in small cities, some of the down town restaurants of New York are in build ings in which no cooking is allowed. Some of the busiest of the midday res taurants purchase all their meats and stews already cooked and merely hear them through again before serving them to patrons. This branch of the restaurant business has reached such proportions that the mere operation of cooking for such places has become an established business, and owners of ovens thrive at it.—New York Sun.

'America cannot lay claim to the first locomotive or the first railroad. That Yankee genius was not very far behind her, for, when George Stephenson driven on the Baltimore and Ohio rail road, July 4, 1828, by Charies Carroll of Carroliton, the last surviving signer of the Deciaration of Independence. That the Committee had the power to order a new election there can not be the slightest doubt and even had they been prompted "by selfish motives, prefering one set of candidates to another" or desiring to act, "high-handed," they, in the one case, could have declared of the set of Councilmen the nominees or could have gone beyond and uominated an entirely different board to satisfy their selfish notions.

Having the true interest of the Demonstrate theory and with an average of the selfish and the selfish notions.

Having the true interest of the Demo-cratio party at heart and with an eye single for the future good of the party, the Committee wisely adopted the conrect hey did. A notice of contest had been filed and to take np that con-test would have not only been a long drawn out and very uupleasant affair but would have caused dissension in the party and split the factions so wide apart as to have jeopordized the Demotestees, Parrish and Hinton, contrary to the statutes; (J) Henry McGinley, who you appear as to have jeopordized the Democratic party in November. When the mists have cleared away and the motives which prompted each committeeman in thus deciding the matter are made public, then, in place of the abuse which is being heaped on their heads from certain quarters, the Committee will receive the commendation from every fair-minded voter of "well done good and faithful servants."

The News does not believe there will be another primary held. It believes that after the would-be contestants have had time to cool off and view the situation from a more reasonable standpoint, that there who have not already done so that those who have not already done so will then decide to withdraw from the race and support the nominees of the recent primary at the November election.

The Republicans in this city and county are laughing in their sleeves at the contration which is springing un in

SIGNALING TO MARS.

The Difficulty of Doing So by Means The One Young Mark Twain Sprung

But we must not suppose that the mighty conflagration would appear to dneing a unique effect. When he had the Martian as a very conspicuous object. It would, rather, be a very small to his father and, handing it to him, feathere, but still I think it would not said: be beyond the reach of a practiced observer in that planet.

On the other hand, if an area the size ested in it." of Lake Superior on Mars was to be flooded with petroleum and that petro-specimen with astonishment. That leum was to be kindled, we should expect to witness the event from here not as a great and striking conflagration.
but as a tiny little point of just disthem. The discussion was long and but as a tiny little point of just dis-ceruible light. The disk of Mars is learned. The opinions expressed were not a large object, and the conflagration would not extend over the three hundredth part of that disk.

of would would part of that disk.

It is sufficient to state those facts to show that the possibility of signaling to Mars is entirely beyond the power of human resources.—Sir Robert S. Ball in Iudependent.

Roasted Coffee

at which Arbuckles' famous roasted coffee can be sold is made possible by its enormous sale. It should not be classed with the inferior imitations sold at a cent a pound less than Arbuckles'. It has a quality greatly superior to these imitations and makes many more cupfuls to the pound. No other firm in the world can buy coffee to so good advantage as the producers of Arbuckles' Coffee. No other coffee is cleaned, roasted or blended with such great care and
